

Call for Papers

Seventh International Conference on MIGRATION AND DEVELOPMENT

International Migration Institute, University of Oxford, June 30 – July 1, 2014.

The French Development Agency (AFD) Research Department, the World Bank Development Research Group (DECRG), the Center for Global Development (CGD) and the International Migration Institute at the University of Oxford are jointly organizing the Seventh International Conference on “Migration and Development”. The conference is devoted to investigating ways in which international migration affects economic and social changes in developing countries. Possible topics include the effects of migration on poverty, inequality, and human capital formation in developing countries, diaspora externalities, remittances, brain drain, migration and institutional/technological change.

A selection of papers from the conference will be considered for a special “features” issue of The Economic Journal.

KEYNOTE SPEAKERS:

Philippe Fargues, European University Institute

David McKenzie, World Bank
